

Please do not lower the standards for telemarketing calls!! Since Indiana's law went into effect, it's has been heavenly to have my privacy at home back. No more idiots waking me up on Saturday morning, trying to sell me stuff I don't want. I refuse to buy anything over the phone, but that didn't stop them from trying. Even if I'm already one of their customers, I don't want to give them permission to bug me at home. Why don't you do something useful, like give us some recourse to stop all the junk e-mail they're bombing us with now?
